The fuel that powers a lit-up culture is the incredible potential of your people. And whether it's transforming your leaders, overcoming unconscious bias, embedding DEI, or navigating change and disruption, Tony Chatman brings the heat that will ignite the potential in your people to create a culture that shines. With over 20 years' experience working with some of the most successful and diverse organizations in the world—including Chase Bank, Estée Lauder, the U.S. Secret Service, NOAA, and NASA—Tony unites the variance in people's beliefs, backgrounds, personalities, perspectives, and levels of power by speaking to the need we all have to be seen. As a scientist and chemical engineer as well as a husband, father, and former leader of a nonprofit dedicated to improving lives and livelihoods, Tony is equal parts head and heart, combining rigorous scientific research into human behavior and psychology with a deep love for humanity and a passion for cultural transformation. With Tony and his team's finely tuned and transformative trainings, you'll experience firsthand what it feels like to finally get to the bottom of your culture issues and experience the full power of your people.
