

Brett R. Powell, B.A., CWPC

Vice President

American Institute for Preventive Medicine

Farmington Hills, Michigan

Mr. Powell is a vice president at the American Institute for Preventive Medicine, a national leading wellness company located in Farmington Hills, Michigan. He is considered to be one of the nation's foremost authorities on design and implementation of worksite wellbeing programs as well as how to effectively engage the multigenerational workforce. Mr. Powell was voted one of the nation's Top 50 Health Promoters of 2016 by the Wellness Council of America (WELCOA). Due to his expertise in this area, he is a sought-after speaker at national conferences including the National Wellness Conference, the Art & Science of Health Promotion Conference, WELCOA and the American Heart Association. Mr. Powell has also written extensively on the subject, including an article published in the American Journal of Health Promotion. He sits on the board of directors for the Michigan Wellness Council. Mr. Powell's career is motivated by the prospect of affecting one person's life in a positive manner, let alone the lives of many.